The Komets' regular season was nothing short of spectacular. They finished with a record of 63-11-8, the best record in the IHL. They also led the league in scoring, averaging 4.56 goals per game. The Komets' offense was led by a trio of high-scoring forwards: Todd Krygier, Mike Watt, and Mark Ferner.

The Komets' defense was just as impressive as their offense. They allowed a league-low 2.55 goals per game, and they had four shutouts during the regular season. The Komets' defense was led by goaltender Clint Malarchuk, who won the James Norris Memorial Trophy as the IHL's top goaltender.

The Komets' playoff run was just as dominant as their regular season. They won their first two playoff series in four games each, and they then defeated the Milwaukee Admirals in the Turner Cup Finals in five games. The Komets' victory was their first Turner Cup championship in franchise history.

The Komets' 1993 championship run was a truly special season. They were the best team in the IHL from start to finish, and they capped off their season with a well-deserved championship victory. Perfect: The Fort Wayne Komets' 1993 Championship Run is the definitive account of this historic season.
