Excerpt

From the chapter "The Pressure Cooker":

“I'm sitting in the library, surrounded by books and papers. I'm trying to study for my upcoming exams, but I can't concentrate. My mind is racing, and I can't seem to focus on anything. I'm feeling overwhelmed and stressed out. I'm not alone. Many college students feel the pressure to succeed. We're expected to get good grades, get involved in extracurricular activities, and maintain a social life. It can be a lot to handle, and it's easy to feel like we're not good enough.

I've learned that it's important to take breaks when I'm feeling overwhelmed. I go for a walk, or I listen to music, or I just take a few deep breaths. I also try to remind myself that I'm not alone. There are other people who are going through the same thing. We're all in this together.”
